BIG CONVENTION CLOSED

ADJOURNMENT OF THE B. Y. P. U. CHICAGO MEETING.

Services Held from Early Morning Until Late at Night-End of the Y. P. C. U. Convention.

CHICAGO, July 28 .- With a consecration full of the evangelical spirit, the Baptist Young People's Association of America brought the convention of the society to a close at the Coliseum to-night before one of the largest audiences of the four days' gathering. The Rev. William H. Geistweit, acting editor of the Union, the official organ of the society, led the services, being preceded by Dr. James B. Granfill, of Texas, who delivered the consecration address.

From 9 o'clock in the morning until late to-night devotional services were in progress in various parts of the city, especially arranged for the delegates. In all the subject of "Kingship," the topic of the convention, was foremost in the thoughts of the speakers. After a largely attended missionary praise service at the Coliseum, the delegates scattered to the morning services of many churches, in which some of their leaders were occupying the pulpits. "Thy Kingdom Come" was the topic suggested for all the morning speakers. In the afternoon the annual convention sermon was delivered by the Rev. E. K. Chivers, of Boston. He was preceded by the Rev. Fred P. Haggard, of Siam, who made a missionary talk. "We have not elected a successor to Dr. Chivers as editor and general secretary, said Secretary H. W. to children bill, the heat was so oppressive | Cincipuati accommodation. that Sir Howard Vincent suggested that thing start at from 100 to 300 barrels, but | there would be no loss of dignity if the members sat in their shirt sleeves. There is said to be a precedent for this as for counsel appearing without wig and gown, and Sir Howard had got one arm of July operations as compared with that well out of his sleeve when the chairman frowned down the suggestion. This was the only chilly occurrence of a baking hot day, but no one was really thankful.

Sliding Scale for Bait.

"No, didn't catch a blessed fish," laughed the truthful man who had just returne from his vacation. "I will admit that started out with the idea of breaking . known records, but I got discouraged right at the start, and all the fish that I expected to catch are still enjoying life. When arrived at my destination I was told that if I needed angleworms I could get them o a small boy who made a business of furnishing them to ambitious anglers. looked him up at once and asked him he could get me some. 'Do you want the 10-cent kind or th 25-cent kind?' he asked. "'What kind would you advise?' said I vastly amused at the serious way he put "'Well,' said he, 'if you want worms to drown, the 10-cent kind will do, but if you want worms to catch fish you'd better take the 25-cent kind. "I gravely assured him that I needed the 25-cent kind, got them and spent the rest of a bolling hot day drowning the worms that he had furnished me. On my way to my boarding place, with nothing in my hands but my fishing rod, I met the small boy, who, after solemnly surveying me for a moment, fished out from a pair of ragged trousers three dirty nickels and handed them to me saying: "'I don't want to cheat you, mister." "The very fear of once more meeting that small boy empty-handed kept me from trying my luck again."
